INTERIM SENIOR PASTOR

As we approach the season of Lent, starting with Ash Wednesday on March 5, we are called to reflect upon our lives and relationships with one another and especially our relationship with Christ. We are encouraged to spend time moving closer to the one whose death and life we celebrate on Easter. Sometimes, we are asked to give up something so that we will have more resources to assist us in that journey.

Rev. Dr. Bruce Epperly is a UCC minister, teacher and author from the Cape Cod area who I read regularly. Here I want to share with you parts of an article he wrote in 2014. I appreciate his views on this solemn time of Ash Wednesday and Lent. I pray you will find them enlightening.

Life is fragile, and we hope for spiritual wholeness, perhaps, everlasting life evolving in companionship with God and our loved ones. For years, I struggled with Ash Wednesday Services precisely because of their otherworldliness and asceticism. My self-denial in Lent was typically half-hearted and short-lived.

These days, I am reconsidering the meaning of Ash Wednesday. The brevity and uncertainty of life now invites me to praise, wonder, and beauty, and to seize the moment – for this is the day God has made and I will rejoice in it! All that I love and care for is mortal and transitory, but mortality is the inspiration to celebration and love. Plato once described time as the moving image of eternity. We are constantly dying, but we are also constantly living as we reflect God’s vision in the world of the flesh. This day, this moment, is a “thin place” for God is with us, revealed in flesh, blood, and healing touch.

This Ash Wednesday, I’m letting go of everything that keeps me from rejoicing in the passing beauty of the earth. Each year, as summer begins, I train my eyes for the first fireflies. Their season is brief, and given humanity’s destruction of the natural world, I fear that each summer will be the last. But, when I see the first firefly in late May, my heart leaps with joy and all summer long, I rejoice in the fragile flashing beauty they display.

Yes, we are dust, but we are earthly dust, springing forth from a multi-billion year holy adventure. But, dust is good, after all; it is the place of fecundity, of moist dark soil, and perhaps we are “star-dust,” as Rex Hunt suggests, emerging from God’s intergalactic creativity. We are frail, but we are also part of a holy adventure reflecting God’s love over billions of years and in billions of galaxies.

How can we not rejoice in the color purple or pause in wonder at a baby’s birth? How can we be oblivious to the “dearest freshness deep down things?” Like Jacob, Ash Wednesday causes us to pause, notice, wake up, and discover that “God is in this place” and now we know it! With author Patricia Adams Farmer, Ash Wednesday invites us to take a “beauty break,” open to the awe-filled, precarious world in which we live.

So this Ash Wednesday, I plan on considering the lilies and the birds the air. I will enjoy the beauty of the beach on my morning walk. Tomorrow, at our congregation’s two Ash Wednesday Services, I will place ashes on congregants, but not the ashes of world-denial or bodily-mortification, but the ashes of transformation, of awakening to beauty and love, of seizing the moment.

In some liturgies, the imposition of ashes is accompanied by the words, “repent and believe the gospel.” And, that I plan to do precisely this as I embrace these words – I plan to repent and believe – to “repent,” turn around, live more in moment, appreciating God’s grandeur, and believing the good news – the embodied, yet ever-lasting, gospel of beauty, wonder, and grace – the good news of walking with beauty all around me.

Lent offers us a special time for reflection and renewal. We are fortunate that Lent comes in the spring. The vision of new birth comes easily. I pray that you will take advantage of this season of new beginnings. On March 5, we will gather for worship and, if desired, the imposition of ashes. The following Wednesdays at 6:30 p.m. we plan to gather for meditation and reflection. Refreshments are being planned so we can 'chat and chew' about faith journeys from Biblical times to those at St. Paul today. Hopefully you can join us for the conversations.

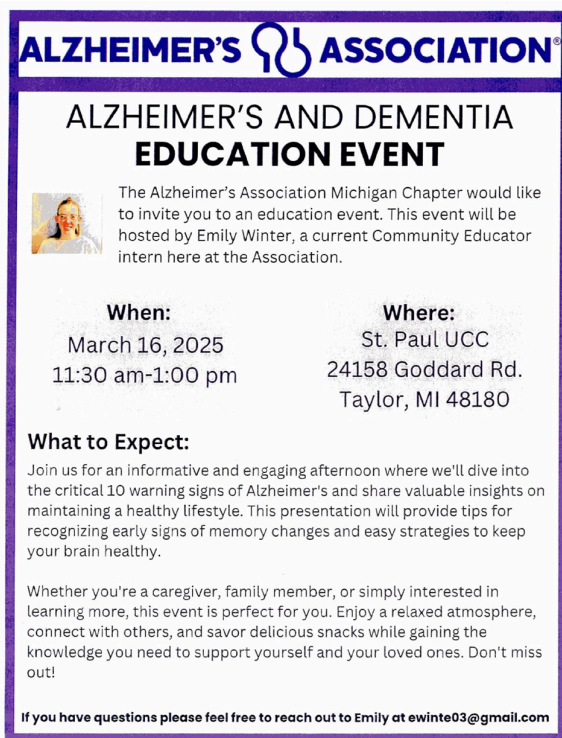

Looking forward to seeing you in Church,
Linda

ALL CHURCH EVENTS

2025 Lent Activities

Lent is recognized as a time of reflection, it is a time to consider our own values and especially our faith and our relationship with our creator.

“ Even now,” says the Lord, “return to me with all your heart, with fasting, with weeping and with mourning.” Rend your hearts and not your garments. Return to the Lord, your God, for he is gracious and compassionate, slow to anger and abounding in love, and he relents in sending calamity. (Joel 2:12-13)

Lent is comprised of those 40 days (minus Sundays) leading from Ash Wednesday to the Holy weekend of Good Friday thru the Easter resurrection celebration.

At St. Paul we will worship on Ash Wednesday (March 5) at 6:30 pm with the offering of the imposition of ashes for those we desire.

The following Wednesdays (March 12, 19, 26, April 2, 9) we will gather for Discussion, Meditation and Refreshments at 6:30pm. Our talks will center around what the church has meant to us, individually and as a community, what it means today, and what it means to the future. Your thoughts and ideas are important. Please come and share them.

As we share this Lenten journey, may it be filled with prayer, fellowship and good thoughts. See you on Wednesdays, March 5th, 12th, 19th, 26th, April 2nd, and 9th at 6:30 pm. Linda

Forty Things to give up for Lent: The List

Ash Wednesday and the beginning of Lent are just around the corner. As the season of Lent approaches, many of us think about something to “give up.” Unfortunately, these things often have little impact upon our life and walk with Christ.

With that said, we would like to offer up “40 things to give up for Lent.” But this list is different. It is not the typical things like soda or chocolate. These are truly things to give up not just for Lent, but for the rest of your life.
